THE HEROES:

A
NEW BALLAD, &c.

I.

OF all the Jobbs that e'er have past
Our House, since times of Jobbing ;
Sure none was ever like the Last,
Ev'n in the Days of Robin :
For he himself had blush'd for Shame
At this polluted Cluster,
Of Fifteen N--bles of great Fame,
All brib'd by one false Muster.

II. Two

(4)

II.

Two D--kes on Horseback first appear,

Both tall and of great Prowess ;

Two little B--r--ns in the Rear

(For they're, you know, the Lowest :))

But High and Low they all agree

To do whatever Man dar'd ;

Those ne'er so tall, and those that fall

A Foot below the Standard.

III.

Duke of Montague

Three Regiments one D--ke contents,

With two more Places, you know ;

Since his B--th Kn--ghts, his Gr--ce delights

In Tri-a junct' in U-no.

D: Bolton

Now B--lt--n comes with Beat of Drums,

Tho' Fighting be his Loathing ;

He much dislikes both Guns and Pikes,

But relishes the Cloathing.

IV. Next

(5)

IV.

Next doth advance, defying France,
A Peer in wond'rous Bustle ;
With Sword in Hand he stout doth stand,
And braggs his Name is Russel : — Luke Bedford
He'll beat the French from ev'ry Trench,
And blow them off the Water ;
By Sea and Land he doth command,
And looks an errant Otter.

V.

But of this Clan, there's not a Man
For Bravery that can be,
(Tho' ^{ancestor} An-----r should make a Stir)
Compar'd with M-----s ^{Marquis of Granby} Gr---by :
His Sword and Drefs both well exprefs
His Courage most exceeding ;
And by his Hair, you'd almost swear
He's valiant Charles of Sweden.

VI. The

(6)

VI.

Harcourt Hallifax

The next are H-----t, Ha-----x,

And F-----h, choice Commanders!

For these the Nation we must Tax,

But ne'er send them to Flanders.

Two Corps of Men do still remain,

Chomley Berkley
Earl Ch-----ly's and Earl B-----ley's;

The Last I hold not quite so bold

As formerly was Herc'les.

VII.

L-Gowen

And now, dear G----, thou Man of Pow'r,

And comprehensive Noddle;

Tho' you've the Gout, yet as you're stout,

Why wa'n't you plac'd in Saddle?

Then you might ride to either Side,

Chuse which K---- you'd serve under;

But, dear Dragoon, change not too soon,

For fear of th' other Blunder.

VIII. This

VIII.

This faithful Band shall ever stand,
Defend our Faith's Defender ;
Shall keep us free from Popery,
The French, and the PRETENDER.
Now God blefs all our M-n--try,
May they the Crown environ,
To hold in Chain whate'er P----e reign,
And rule with Links of Iron.
